FOX CALIFORNIA THEATRE STOCKTON

- The Fox California Theater is one of Stockton's most prominent landmarks. Its location on Main Street across from the County Courthouse puts it in the heart of downtown. Completed in 1930, it was one in a chain of 32 California movie palaces built by Fox West Coast Theaters.
- The theater was designed by prominent Los Angeles architects Balch & Stanbery, who designed a number of theaters for the Fox empire, including the theaters in Pomona and Riverside, California.
- The Fox California Theater was placed on the National Register of Historic Places June 27, 1979.
